TOKYO — The Last Bronx

Tokyo was riding high on the tsunami of global economic supremacy when the Bubble broke in '91. Then things fell apart. Hundred billion yen building complexes were left half-finished, and salarymen started having instant ramen for lunch as the slush-money supplies dried up. And slowly, the hidden Japan began to emerge, crawling in from the shadows on the outskirts of town. Biker gangs and Chinese mafia; loansharks and slave-traders; Doomsday cults, madmen and thieves.

Those were the days of the first All-Tokyo StreetWar — where young gangs met and clashed and slid into run down streets slick with their own blood. Then a single crew of unstoppable riders appeared to put an end to the violence and bloodshed. Through fair-handed dealings and iron-fisted fighting skills, the Soul Crew gang blazed a path for the future of Tokyo's young....

... until, under circumstances still riddled with doubt and accusations, the leader of the Soul Crew was viciously killed. The tenuous balance of power was thrown out of whack, and every street tribe with pride, dreams or ambition felt the shockwave of his fall like a call to arms. The Second StreetWar was ignited.

At the height of the fighting, an ominously worded challenge to the leaders of the toughest gangs appeared in graffiti scrawls all over town:

Fellow Citizens:

We all grow weary of this bitter strife. And so now I call on each of you in the name of peace. You all know how useless these recent squabbles are. I have a modest proposal to remedy this unfortunate situation: I call for a fighting tournament, solely between the chosen leaders of each worthy gang — a decisive battle that will spare the lives of the young while settling the question of which group has the power needed to rule Tokyo. Of course the fights will be held in secrecy, and the results will not be made public. This is a fight for honor, not fame.

A final word: I regret that under no circumstances can a refusal to participate be accepted. In the event that any of you do not attend, I will make arrangements to have flowers sent to the funeral. I look forward to meeting each of you at the appointed hour.

Several of the recipients of this very peculiar challenge shrugged it off as a practical joke or thought it was a trap set by a rival gang. But when members of their crews were found face-down in Tokyo Bay, the truth of its warning became very clear.

There will be no RSVPs to the Last Bronx.

2. Place the Last Bronx disc, label side up, in the well of the CD tray and close the lid.
3. Turn on the TV or monitor and the Sega Saturn. The Sega Saturn logo appears onscreen. If nothing appears, turn the system off and make sure it is set up correctly before turning it on again.
4. If you wish to stop a game in progress and return to the onscreen control panel, simultaneously press A, B, C and START on the Sega Saturn Control Pad. When the game Title screen appears, press the buttons again to go to the onscreen control panel.

And that's what we're all here for, isn't it?

Remember, the Control Pad functions can be configured in the Key Config section of Options (p. 15).

Arcade Mode

Do you like fighting people? Well, that's against the law and isn't very nice. But now thanks to Arcade Mode, you can have all that fun you love without any of the pesky legal repercussions. Find out just how tough of a street fighter you are by facing each of the Last Bronx fighters in order.

When you enter Arcade Mode, the Player Select screen appears, letting you choose a character to control in the Last Bronx fighting ring. Press the D-Pad in any direction to highlight the portrait of the character you want, and A, C or START to select the highlighted character. Once you make your choice, the Arcade Mode fight begins. There is only one rule — win.

How to Win

Each fight is a default best-of-three rounds match. (The Match Point can be changed in Options, p. 14.) To win a round:

- 1) Knock the other fighter's Life Gauge down to nothing before time expires.
- 2) Have more Life left than your opponent when time runs out.

•A round results in a Draw if both fighters' Life Gauges are equal when time expires. If both Life Gauges reach zero simultaneously, the round ends as a Double KO.

•In the event of a Draw or Double KO, each fighter is awarded one round victory.

•When a round ending in a Draw or Double KO gives the Match Point to both fighters, a one-round Sudden Death fight occurs, with lowered Life Gauges and a shorter Time Limit. Winner take all.

Take a Safety Break— Game Pause

When you need to answer Nature's call, you can press START at any time during a fight to pause the game. The Pause window appears. Choose to "RESUME" or go to the "TITLE SCREEN". Highlight a choice by pressing the D-Pad up or down. Press START to select.

Forced Entry

A second player can enter an Arcade Mode fight at any time (even when you're having fun by yourself) by pressing START on the unused Control Pad. "CHALLENGER COMES" appears onscreen, followed by the VS Mode Player Select screen. The new entrant selects a character, as in Arcade Mode Player Select (p. 9).

Never Say Die — Game Over/Continue

In the event you lose an Arcade Mode match, you have a chance to redeem yourself and humble your foe by continuing the fight. Press START before the "CONTINUE?" timer reaches zero to stage a rematch against your last opponent. Or let the clock tick down, run home and cry yourself to sleep. Nobody'll think any less of you — promise.

Name Entry

You must have done something right. Now all you have to do is figure out how to enter your name. Here's a hint — press the D-Pad left or right to highlight a character. Press A or C to select the character. Press B or select the  to delete one character. Select "END" to finish, and take your place amongst the ranks of the Last Bronx legends.

VS Mode

VS Mode is a two-player fighting mode, where you can rumble with your friends (if you have any). The flow of the game is similar to Arcade Mode. The Player Select screen appears before every match, letting both players pick fighters for the upcoming bout. Select characters as in the Arcade Mode Player Select screen (p. 9). The number of VS Mode wins each player has racked up appears next to the word "WASTED" so you'll always know how things stand between the two of you.

The VS Mode fight plays just like Arcade Mode. The Game Pause window is slightly different, allowing you to choose from "RESUME," "CHARACTER SELECT" or "TITLE SCREEN." Make selections as in the Arcade Mode Game Pause window (p. 10).

Saturn Mode

In the wild, every creature has a natural enemy that it will attack on sight: the mongoose and the cobra, the sperm whale and the giant squid, the mailman and the pit bull. And so it is too in the concrete jungle of Last Bronx. Nagi will attack Kurosawa on sight, Kurosawa hates Yusaku, and Yusaku and Joe are long-time rivals.

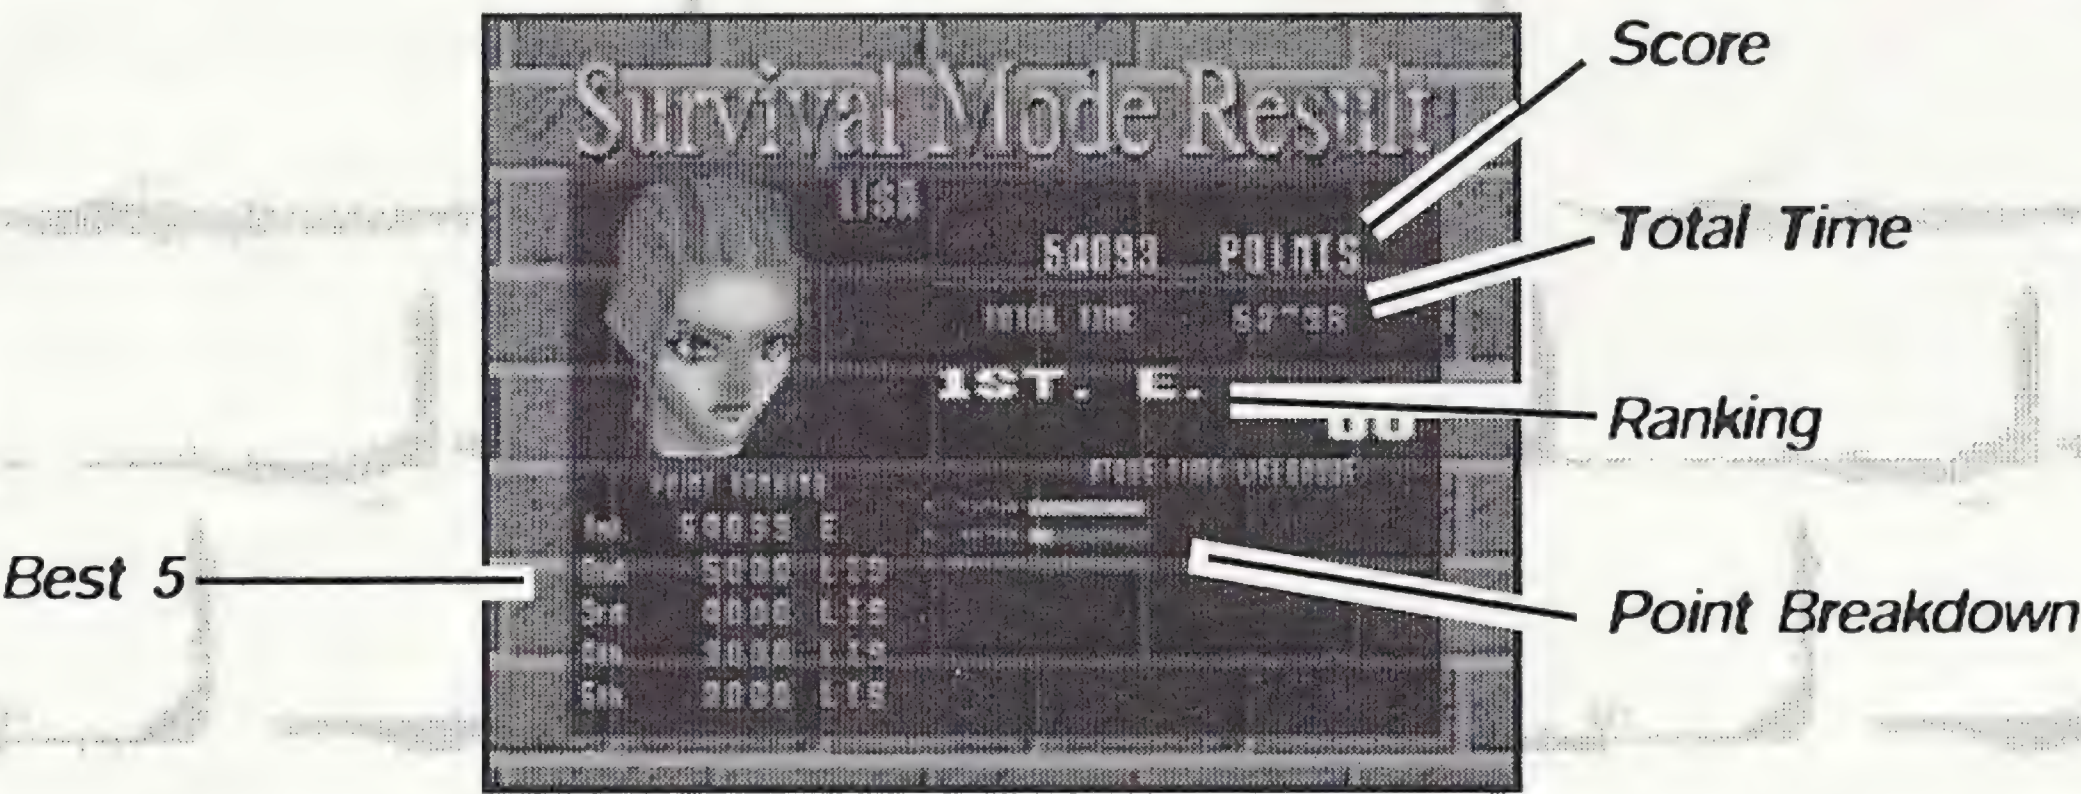

Saturn Mode lets you fight your way through the ranks of the other fighters to a final stage where your character's rival awaits. The flow of gameplay is essentially the same as in Arcade Mode (pp. 9-10), except that the other fighters come at you in random order, leading up to the climactic showdown with your fighter's bitterest foe.

Survival Mode

In the real world of hand-to-hand fighting, broken bones don't knit between rounds. The same goes for Survival Mode play. Face each Last Bronx fighter in one-round elimination combat, without recovering any Life. Find out just how much you can take and how far you can take it without resorting to the first-aid kit.

Select a character from the Player Select screen, just as in Arcade Mode (p. 9). The Survival Mode fight ensues. The game ends when your fighter loses a round (or you plant your last opponent in the ground). You don't have the option to continue. After the fight, the Survival Mode Result screen appears, where you find out what the CPU thought of your performance.

Survival Mode Results

Score

Points awarded for clearing each stage, the time of completion, and Life remaining

Total Time

Ranking

Where you stand in the grand scheme of things

Point Breakdown

The clear time and life remaining for each stage you fought

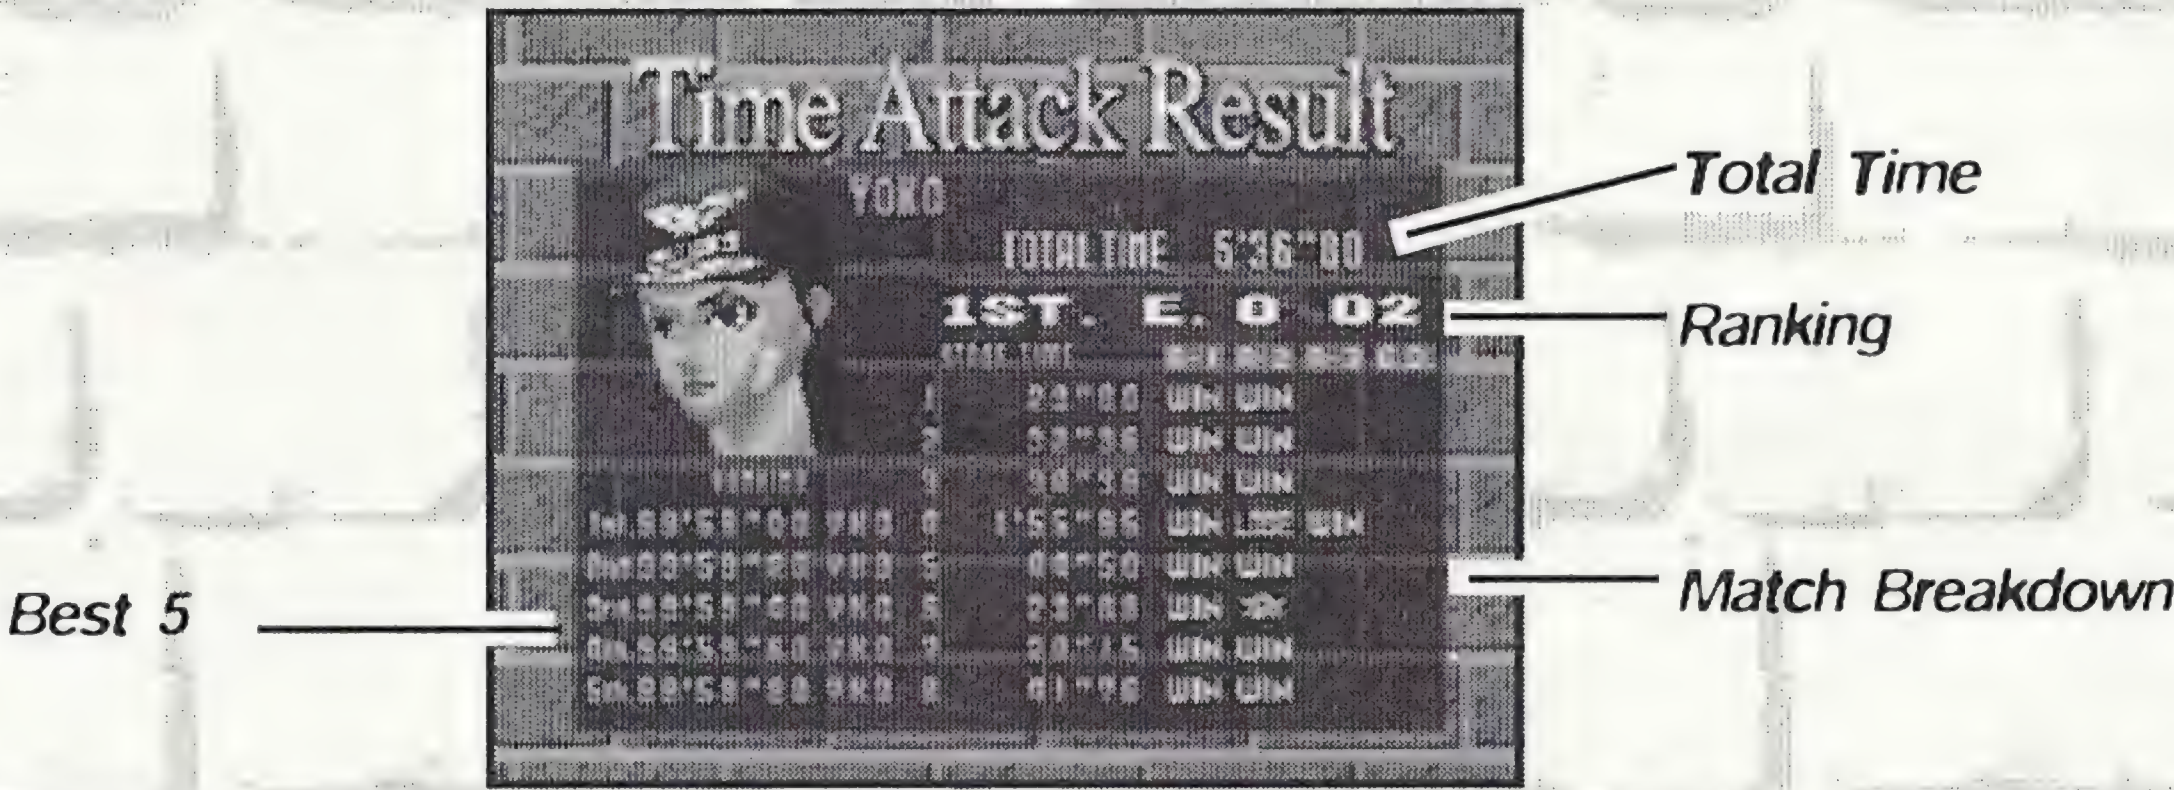

Best 5

Time Attack Mode

Hey speedy — take on all the other characters in order, plus get a really neat ranking result when you clear all of the stages. Pick a fighter as in Arcade Mode (p. 9), then enter the fight. The Last Bronx fighters come at you in Arcade sequence. When you successfully clear all stages, the Time Attack Result screen appears, so you can see how you stack up against the competition.

Time Attack Mode Results

Total Time	Your total time for clearing all stages
Ranking	Your place in the rankings and a space for your initials (if you made the grade)
Match Breakdown	The finishing time for each stage, and the results for each round
Best 5	The cream of the Time Attack crop

Watch Mode

When you're all worn out after a long day of turf wars and scuffles, why not take the edge off by watching two CPU-controlled fighters kick the tar out of each other? Select two fighters to watch in the Player Select screen as in Arcade Mode (p. 9). Or press A , B and C simultaneously to have the CPU pick fighters at random. Then watch them go at it like vicious attack dogs. Press START to pause the action and bring up the Game Pause screen, which functions exactly like the one in VS Mode (p. 11).

Movies

In the Movie Select screen, highlight the title of the animation you want to watch by pressing the D-Pad in any direction, and A or C to play the movie. Press B while the movie is playing to return to the Movie Viewer screen. When you first start playing Last Bronx, the only movie available is the intro animation from the game start sequence. There is a way to make more titles available, but it's a secret. You're smart, you'll figure it out.

Portraits

If you thought the Movies were a tough nut to crack, the Portraits are even more shrouded in secrecy. We're only allowed to reveal that the select screen works like the one in Movie mode. The rest is classified.

Aerial Combo Practice Mode

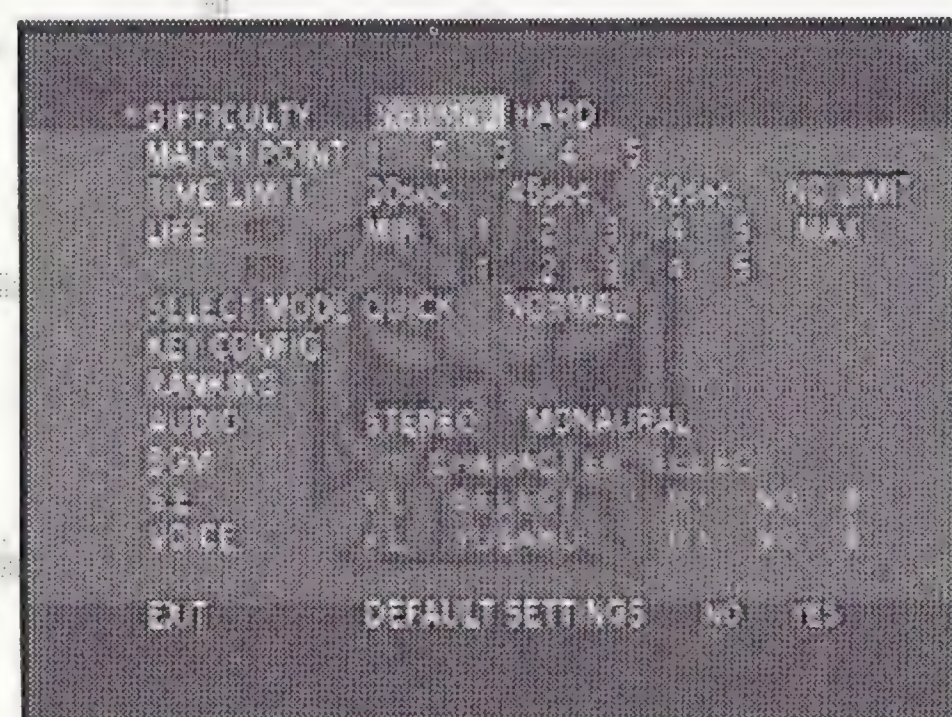

Player tested — mother approved! See how many times you can strike a helpless opponent before he or she hits the ground. First select a fighter to practice with, and a foe to practice on, just like in Arcade Mode Player Select (p.9). Then take your pick of aerial combos to work on, and whether to have the the combo demonstrated Always, Once or Never. The Practice screen appears, letting you work out the combo you selected. An OK message appears when you execute the combo successfully. During Practice, press START to bring up the Pause window, and select either RESUME, COMBO MENU (to return to the list of Aerial Combos), or TITLE SCREEN (to return to the Title screen).

Free Practice Mode

Free Practice lets you pick a foe to bash in any way you like, just like in Aerial Combo, but without any restrictions. Enjoy.

"Life was easy back in the old days - Soul Crew ruled the streets, and nobody gave us any trouble. But since our leader got wasted, you gotta watch your back around here. Now I'm the boss of Neo Soul, but I have to fight to get any respect. Joe split off to do his own thing, and Zaimoku went back home to work for his dad. Now every punk on the street wants to challenge me for the chance to be the new Number One. But I've got three big sticks that say I'm here to stay."

"Yusaku's a good kid — maybe a little wet behind the ears — but he'll do alright. I coulda taken over the Soul Crew after the shakeup, but that's not my thing. So I told Yusaku it was time for him to step up and be a man. Then I hit the road.

Just give me some clear streets and room to ride and you won't hear any complaints from me. That's why I started Shinjuku Mad. We're into the same things: bikes, brawls and bad attitudes. It's not that we go out looking for trouble, it just seems to come our way. Never seems to hang around for long though. Hard to cause a beef on two broken knees.

Anyway, that's my story. I'm not too interested in this whole fighting game, but I've got time to kill. And somebody's gotta show Redrum what it means to be bad."

"Grampa Kusanami's OK I guess... he taught me everything I know about using my sticks. But I wish he wasn't so old-fashioned about things. He doesn't understand that a high-school girl's got to have time to have fun too. He's always nagging that I should spend more time in the dojo and less time hanging out with the Orchids. I just let him talk, then I go and do what I want. After all, since my mom ran off to America with that lawyer, I'm all the family he's got. What's he gonna do — disinherit me?"

"Thrashing the streets of L.A., shredding the slopes in Vale, chilling out back home in Osaka. Yeah, you could say I've been there and done that. I don't ask much out of life. Just have a good time all the time. But that doesn't mean I can't get serious when I need to. Old man Kusanami taught me about that, about finding a center and trusting myself. About using my stick.

I learned a lot at the Kusanami-dojō. And I met Lisa there. Man, is that girl hot or what? But she looks through me like I'm the Invisible Man. Can you believe it?

So I quit the dojo and got together a couple of guys in Helter Skelter to tear up the streets of Tokyo and generally get it on. And when I win this tournament, I think Lisa will begin to see why she and I were meant to be."

"When my brother and I started the G-Troops, all we wanted to do was practice our skills: survival game tactics, hand-to-hand combat, some commando weapons techniques. But the whole thing was training. Nobody was supposed to get hurt.

But I guess word got around that the G-Troops could rock hard with the best of them. Then my brother got that 'invitation' from the Redrum gang, and when he refused, they messed him up pretty bad. I haven't seen him since. So now there's nobody to take his place but me.

I've been in some scrapes before, but nothing like this. The other guys in this tournament look pretty tough, and they've all earned their reps on the street. But I don't care about any of that — they can keep the stupid tournament. All I want is to get my hands on Redeye for what he did to my brother."

"I thought I could give up all this king of the streets tough-guy baloney when I came back to work for my pop. All I wanted to do was put in an honest day's work at the yards, and set a good example for the rest of the Dumpsters."

Then this whole stupid StreetWar thing had to flare up again. That's the reason I quit Soul Crew to begin with. But now Redrum's making threats to my boys. They say there's gonna be trouble if I don't show. I say there's gonna be trouble when I do."

"Just because I'm the only daughter of a zaibatsu director's family, doesn't mean I have to be spoiled rotten and nasty... but I am anyway. I formed the Dogma crew with one rule only — 'No boys allowed.' I don't hate men, I just expect them to serve me. And if pigs like Kurosawa can't handle it, they can tell it to the business end of my sai. That tomboy Yoko on the other hand is welcome to join us whenever she wants."

"Welcome to Roppongi...now get out. This is my turf, my town. You wanna walk on my streets, yer gonna hafta pay the piper. That's me. And I'm packin' a pretty big pipe if ya know what I mean. This whole fightin' tournament is a joke. Nobody gets over on Kurosawa.

Yusaku, Joe, Zaimoku — the whole buncha them — they're running around playing kids games, trying to decide who's King of the Hill. Last time I checked the crown it said 'Roppongi Hardcore Boys rule.'

If the whole town wants to scuffle for the top spot, I'm game. Never walk away from somebody when you can walk all over them. And if that punk Redeye wants a taste — well let's see how he likes sucking down three feet of hardwood with no teeth."
